Between 6 and 12 May, motorized troops were unloaded from thirteen trains at the Rostock railroad station and moved to the Infanterie Kaserne on Ulmenstrasse and to the Putlitz Kaserne on Memelerstrasse. On 8 May, about 50 trucks and 600 enlisted men of the corps artillery brigade of the rifle corps from Altengrabow (sic) were observed between the railroad station and town of Rostock. The soldiers wore red-bordered black epaulets.*

Comment: It cannot be determined whether the arrival of these motorized troops is connected with the arrival of troops in Rostock by sea between 4 and 10 May. It is possible that components of this brigade arrived in Rostock as elements of the brigade were observed leaving Altengrabow on two trains for an undetermined destination. Thirteen trains appear to be excessive for the brigade. The troops are probably in the Rostock area for live firing at sea targets. The move of the 4th AT Artillery Brigade from Jueterbog to Ruegen Island is probably for the same purpose.
